

San Francisco Chronicle

INSIDE SCOOP SF
THE BAY AREA SOURCE FOR BREAKING RESTAURANT NEWS

Now Open: Zero Zero

Wednesday, July 28, 2010

Hey everyone, have you heard about Zero Zero?

Just kidding. The new pizza-centric restaurant from Bruce Hill (Picco, Bix) is the latest summer blockbuster to hit town, and she opens at 5:30 today in the old Azie space on Folsom. At this point, pretty much everything has been written about already — ahem, starting with Inside Scoop's big preview last week — so this opening announcement will be kept short and sweet.

Obviously, Hill's Neapolitan pies are central, but the opening menu also includes starters, pasta, organic soft serve ice cream, not to mention the artisan cocktails from the two bars.

For more on the dark, sultry, 135-seat Zero Zero, check out prior coverage on Inside Scoop, and for even further reading, head over to any of the usual suspects: Daily Candy, Thrillist, UrbanDaddy, Alcademics, Eater, 7x7, Tablehopper, Weekly, GrubStreet et al.

Zero Zero: 826 Folsom Street, between Fourth and Fifth; (415) 348-8800 or zerozerosf.com. Open for dinner daily. Lunch eventually. Reservations for parties of 5 or more.

[All photos by Natalie Knight]